

home for the homeless questions in sport

Senior sport officials give their view on the need for a World Anti-Corruption Agency

By Jens Weinreich

Date published: 08 October 2009

Following an open letter to the International Olympic Committee calling for actions against corruption more senior officials have answered the question whether or not there is a need to establish a World-Anti-Corruption-Agency (WACA)?

Prince Albert II of Monaco, IOC member

“Questions of corruption or unethical questions are covered as far as the IOC is concerned by our Ethics Code. We know that in the world of sport at large there are a lot of issues, some sports have to deal with match-fixing and betting problems. That is a serious issue and the IOC is tackling this problem within its sphere of responsibility in Olympic sports. I am sure that we’d be able to at least address these issues in the most responsible way.”

Willem-Alexander, Prince of Orange, IOC member

“On the issue of an Anti-Corruption-Agency within the sport I think if it’s necessary to have an Agency like that we should install it. I hope it’s not necessary. With WADA it was, so we created WADA. I hope with Anti-Corruption we don’t need it.”

Senior sport officials give their view on the need for a World Anti-Corruption Agency

Senior sport officials give their view on the need for a World Anti-Corruption Agency, Part 2

Senior sport officials give their view on the need for a World Anti-Corruption Agency, Part 3

Article available online from

<http://www.playthegame.org/news/detailed/senior-sport-officials-give-their-view-on-the-need-for-a-world-anti-corruption-agency-p>

Play the Game aims to strengthen the basic ethical values of sport and encourage democracy, transparency and freedom of expression in world sport. Play the Game is an independent institution funded by the Danish Ministry of Culture, the Danish Gymnastics and Sports Associations (DGI) and the Danish Federation of Company Sports (DFIF). Our offices are located at the Danish School of Media and Journalism in Aarhus, Denmark. Unless otherwise specified, all content on this website remains the copyright of Play the Game. However, reposting of information found on this site is positively encouraged, provided credit for the article is clearly given to Play the Game and the article’s author, as well as a link to playthegame.org is included with copied material. For extensive or professional use of material on playthegame.org, or if you are in doubt about copyright restrictions, please contact us at info@playthegame.org to confirm permissions. Opinions expressed on this site are the opinions of the authors themselves, not necessarily of Play the Game. Please see site disclaimer for more information.

Play the Game | c/o Danish School of Media and Journalism | Olof Palmes Alle 11 | info@playthegame.org | +45 70 27 55 77